

Tod A. Gold

tod.gold@hcmp.com

direct:

fax:

Professional Overview

Tod Gold has practiced environmental law since 1984. Prior to entering private practice in 2000, Tod gained years of invaluable experience working for the United States Environmental Protection Agency in Washington, D.C. and Seattle. Tod's practice emphasizes assisting individuals, companies, and municipalities with issues relating to contaminated properties, including acquisition; cleanup of soil, groundwater, or sediments; redevelopment; and sale of those properties. He regularly works with technical consultants to perform environmental due diligence on behalf of buyers of commercial properties and to negotiate regulatory closure, administrative orders, and consent decrees with state and federal agencies.

Articles and Presentations

Author, King County Bar Association Bulletin, (Can Clean Energy Change How The World Works?), December 2022

Education

J.D. and L.L.M (environmental law), George Washington University Law School
B.A., Colgate University, magna cum laude

Bar/Court Admissions

Washington State Courts